1. About us

Our history

Waldorf Schools¹ are inspired by the philosophy of Rudolf Steiner (1861-1925), the founder of anthroposophy. Following World War I, he committed himself to encourage social renewal that would free people from wage slavery. Steiner gave many lectures addressing the social problems of the time, one of which was given for the workers at the Waldorf-Astoria factory.

During this lecture, he proposed the concept of keeping children in school longer to enable them to have more opportunities in life.

This caught the imagination of the listeners who were present. They wanted a school like that for their children.

Emil Molt, the director of the factory, supported this idea and asked Steiner to lead a school for the children of his labourers. This marked the beginning of the Waldorf School, called the Freie Waldorfschule, in 1919 in Stuttgart.

The school grew rapidly and became better known through the years. During a conference at the Gymnasium Haganum in The Hague in 1922, Rudolf Steiner spoke, and several listeners decided to establish a school just like that in The Hague. In 1923, the first children gathered in a living room in Columbusstraat. It became the first Waldorf School in The Netherlands, called "de Vrijeschool".

Until the 1960s, there were only ten Waldorf schools in the Netherlands. In the 1970s and 1980s, the movement grew explosively and now there are nearly 100 Waldorf schools with 19 000 students.

Beyond Germany and The Netherlands, Waldorf Schools were first built in Scandinavian countries and the UK, followed by countries like the United States on other continents. Waldorf schools can now be found throughout the world.

Our story

Over the past decades, The Hague has become the international capital for Justice and Peace, host to the International Court of Justice, Eurojust and OPCW. Many large multinational companies have chosen to establish their main office in this beautiful city. In ¹ Waldorf schools in the Netherlands are called "Vrijeschool", which means "free school". In some countries, schools have chosen to use the name Steiner school. They all take inspiration from the same source. In this document, we will use the term Waldorf School. However, wherever Vrijeschool is part of the name of a Dutch organisation, we will refer to the organisation as it is named.

2017, we recognised a clear demand for an International Waldorf School where our pedagogy could be made available to non-Dutch-speaking children who move across the world with their parents. After a thorough study, we were granted permission (and funding) by the Ministry of Education in The Netherlands to establish the school.

2. Mission and vision

Core mission

Our school is open to all children who are enrolled by their parents and who fulfil the Admissions criteria. We ask the parents to make a conscious decision for the education that the school stands for (see core values). It is our aim to support students to become independent, free-thinking people who can actively participate in society, according to their own abilities. We aim to help them to develop their basic skills: knowledge as well as artistic, physical and social skills, and stimulate them to develop their own problem-solving abilities.

Core values

- We take our inspiration from Anthroposophy. We strive towards education where Waldorf pedagogy becomes neither a theoretical system, nor a collection of outer methods, but a wellspring of living insight.
- Healthy child development unfolds most fully in the context of a community with healthy social relationships among parents, teachers and children.
- Each child is treated with loving interest and acceptance.

5. School hours

Entering the building

You will be able to enter the building in two ways. You may go through the main entrance on 2e Messstraat 31, or you can go around to the back of the building by entering the playground from Rotterdamsestraat 42.

Primary school classes

Children in primary school classes 1-5 are to be dropped off on the playground at 08:25. They may not yet proceed to their classes, but should go straight to the playground with their bags and other belongings. Their teacher will welcome them there and take them to their classes when the bell is rung at 8:35.

Class 6 may enter the building from 8:25 onwards. They may independently go to their classroom, where their teacher will welcome them.

All primary school classes are dismissed at 15:30 on Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays. On Wednesdays, the children are dismissed at 12:30. Parents may collect their children in front of the school building.

Kindergarten

The kindergarten children are to be dropped off on the kindergarten playground between 08:30 and 08:40, where their teacher will wait for them to take them inside. Monday to Friday at 15:30 the kindergarten children will be waiting to be picked up by their parent/afterschool care/afterschool activity teacher on the wall of the kindergarten playground. On Wednesdays, pick-up time is at 12:30.

6. School grounds

Playground

The playground has been turned into a green space with bushes, a vegetable garden and flowerbeds. There is a large sandpit, two play structures, fences and structures built from willow branches. As the playground evolves, more possibilities to explore nature will become available. The children can run around and climb at their free will when a teacher or staff member is on duty (before school from 8:25 and during playtime in the school day).

For safety reasons, children are not allowed to climb on any equipment after school, as there are no teachers on duty at that time.

There is also an area on the playground for the children to store their bikes.

Lost and found

The school has a lost and found box, where you are able to collect things that have been left behind. Small objects, like keys or jewellery, will be kept in the office. Everything unclaimed will be brought to charity twice a year.

7. Parent involvement

School app: Parro

For effective communication, we use a school app named Parro. This way we can communicate easily and safely and share day to day and weekly information with you as parents.

When your child is enrolled, you will receive an invitation from the administration to download the app, together with a short introduction on how it works. We use the Parro application as our main mass-communication tool (for class messages and school-wide announcements). Parents can also use it to send a brief, timely message to the teacher (for example, “my child will go home with a friend.”), or it can be used to request a meeting. Parro messages should not contain long texts. Please use email for more extensive messages. The principal of the school is not available via Parro, solely email. Each class teacher will share important announcements and newsletters via Parro. Also, the parent meetings will be planned through Parro. We expect all parents to be updated.

Communication about illness

If your child is sick or has other reasons for not coming to school, please mark them absent on Parro and state the reason for your child’s absence. Please include some small detail about the sickness (e.g. fever, ear infection) or appointment (dentist, hospital, visa request). The teacher will be able to read your message in the morning.

Email

We use email along with Parro to share practical information only. This is not the appropriate medium to use for non-practical (emotional) discussions, so please avoid using email for that purpose. If you have specific comments or complaints, please contact the relevant teacher by email to make an appointment so that you can talk to them in person.

Please also respect private lives of faculty by not expecting responses outside of normal working hours, weekends, and holidays.

Newsletter

Every two months, you will receive a school newsletter through email with information on school policies or reports of events that will or have taken place.

Parent meetings

Parent-teacher meetings are held in October and March. The purpose of these ten-minute meetings is for parents to hear about their child's development and to address any questions or concerns they might have.

You are always welcome to make an appointment with the teacher should you have something to discuss outside the parent-teacher meetings.

Parent evenings

Two evenings a year, teachers will invite all parents to come to the school for a parent evening. During these meetings, the teacher will share updates on the class and sometimes hold a discussion about a particular relevant topic. The teacher may also lead the group in planning and preparing for celebrations or discussing practical issues in the class. These parent evenings also help foster school community and strengthen connections amongst parents in the class.

Parent association

Waldorf schools are known for their lively parent community. Several parents of our school took the initiative to start a parent association. They help the school to support and organise activities for the parent community.

Volunteers

Volunteers are also very welcome at our school. We always need extra hands to help with things like gardening, class assistance, office work, etc. Please contact us if you would like to volunteer.

Festivals and celebrations

Seasonal festivals have a special place in the Waldorf curriculum. We celebrate four festivals as a school each year. Because these festivals are a shared experience – with parents, teachers and children – we often invite parents to help organise these festivals.

Since we are an international school and we welcome children and parents from various backgrounds, we also invite you to share with us the festivals from your home country. We will be creating opportunities throughout the year for families to share festivities, rituals and holidays from their home countries. Please talk to your child's class teacher to find out more.

8. Learning Support Offer

The 'learning support offer' used to be written in a separate document called the 'support plan'. From this year, it is incorporated into the School Guide of all schools. It explains what help and guidance the school is able to provide, how we collaborate with other organisations, and how we operate as a school. The school is part of the SPPOH partnership. The first part discusses the partnership, followed by information about our school.

8.1 Duty of Care

As a school, we have a legal obligation to ensure that every child finds a suitable educational place, even when extra help is needed. This obligation, known as the duty of care, applies to both current students and new applicants. In consultation with parents, we seek the best possible support and educational placement. We work together with the SPPOH partnership and other partners to find this placement.

8.2 Basic Support

Every school provides help to children who need it. The foundation of support within each school must be solid, which is why we refer to this as basic support. All students are entitled to this. If a student needs additional help, it is initially provided through the school's basic support. This may include support for students with specific learning difficulties, concentration problems, or learning challenges.

8.3 Additional Support

Additional support is available when a student needs more help than is provided through the school's basic support. An Individual Development Plan (OPP) is written by the school to monitor and guide the student's progress and the effectiveness of the support. This support is discussed in a Multidisciplinary Meeting (MDO) with the parents and, if possible, the student. Sometimes SPPOH arranges this additional support; other times, the school does.

Support may include a specific “arrangement” grant or other in-school support. A student may also be referred to special (primary) education with an admission declaration (TLV).

8.4 School’s Support Offer

The International Waldorf School The Hague is a small school with very limited resources. We follow the support structures of SPPOH. Almost all of the in-school support is provided by the class teachers. When parents have a concern about their child, they should raise this firstly with the class teacher. If concerns persist, then parents may contact the Learning Support Coordinator (Helen Claus) or the School Principal (Rodette van Dunné).

8.4.1 Support Structure

All teachers are expected to be aware of individual children’s needs and to plan for these. Class teachers include differentiation ideas for both below average and above average students in their lesson planning. Sometimes additional resources are provided in the classroom. The teachers can always consult with the Learning Support Coordinator (Helen Claus) or with the Student Well-being Coordinator (Mieke van der Merwe) for advice and support.

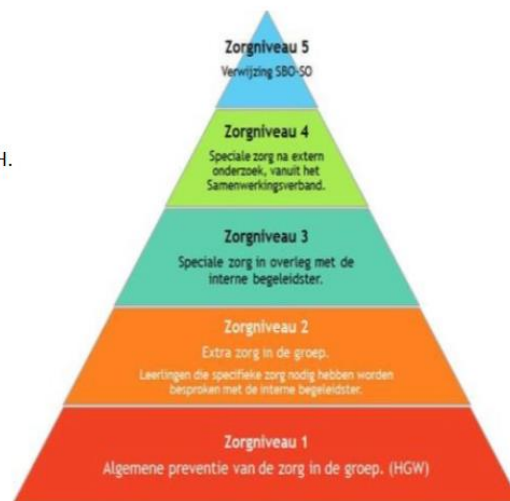

Care level 5:
Referral to special education

Care level 4:
Specialized support after (external) research – funding by SPPOH.
Multidisciplinary meetings held.

Care level 3: Additional support or assessment in consultation with Helen. Goals set with Helen and recorded on OPP.

Care level 2: Additional support in the classroom. Teacher sets goals. Students flagged up with Helen.

Care level 1: Differentiation in the classroom and planning

If general differentiation in the planning is not deemed enough to support an individual student’s needs, then individual goals will be set by the teacher and communicated to the parents. For some children, it may be necessary to put a specific behaviour plan in place. If individual goals are not achieved, or the progress of a student is consistently slow then the school will move the student to Care Level 3 and consult with external organisations for advice.

8.4.2 Strengths in Our Support

Class sizes at IWSTRH are small. This means that class teachers are able to give attention to individual students.

IWSTRH is an international school that provides a welcoming school environment for all children, whatever their background and educational experience.

Many teachers and students come from countries across the world and are also bilingual.

This means that the school has a lot of experience in supporting students with English as an Additional Language. The school also has a specialist teacher who gives individual or small group lessons to students new to English.

The Waldorf curriculum allows for rhythm and routine, movement and creativity. It is based on well-established child development principles and incorporates ‘head, heart and hands’.

8.4.3 Required School Skills

To develop optimally, a child should possess the following school-related skills:

Self- reliance:	The student can follow group routines and verbal (classroom) instructions with minimal support.
Social skills:	The student can function independently and appropriately in a group with peers.
Emotional regulation:	The student accepts adult authority and follows verbal behavioural guidance.
Curriculum:	The student can follow the curriculum offered through basic support, with some differentiation or extra resources.
Group size:	The student can learn in a group of 15 students. Our classes have a maximum of 15 students.

8.4.4 Ambitions and Development Goals

The school staff have undergone some initial training in gender diversity but we plan to develop our school policy around this topic. In 2025-2026, we will also spend time developing our student well-being policies and incorporating topics of diversity, positive behaviour, sexuality and mental health more clearly into teachers’ planning.

English as an Additional Language (EAL)

At the International Waldorf School of the Hague, we are committed to supporting the needs of all children, and this includes providing English language support to our multilingual learners. The English as an Additional Language (EAL) programme has been designed to support non-native English-speaking students from kindergarten to Class 6.

Our primary goal is to ensure that children are confident and successful in their language acquisition, so that they can develop socially as well as academically. This is achieved with contextual-based learning by being exposed to a broad range of topics based on their interests and the world around them.

Children in our EAL programme will always be made to feel proud of their culture and language, and their ability to be able to work in more than one language is treated as an asset that enhances their development.

School readiness

When a child approaches the age 5 or 6, they may be ready to move on from kindergarten into the first class. At this point, we make an assessment about school readiness through the lens of the child's development. Waldorf educators' caution, as compared with other educational streams, grows out of a commitment to each child, with the goal that he or she enters grade school confidently and experiences success and satisfaction academically, socially and emotionally. In other words, we stand with the parents in wanting what is best for the child for all the educational years ahead. School entry needs to be a carefully considered decision.

In January, we hold a special meeting about school readiness and how Waldorf schools approach this transition. At the meeting, we will explain which steps are made in preparing your child to go to the first grade. Your questions on this topic are always welcome.

9. School agreements

Agreements on behaviour

These agreements exist to ensure that each child experiences a safe and happy environment at school. This means that we expect a certain kind of behaviour from each member of the community. Respect for one another, each other's background and personal belongings are a few of the most important things in a community. At our school we support each other in our words and actions, work together, and do not exclude others. Each person is valuable, and we can appreciate all individuals' strengths and weaknesses, talents and challenges. We care about each other's physical and emotional safety, and we listen and communicate in a respectful way. To support this, our team works with a programme called The Four Pillars of Wellbeing by The Contentment Foundation (<https://www.contentment.org>).

Diversity statement

In our work with children, we are committed to the ideals upon which Waldorf/Steiner education was founded. These include respect for the dignity of each individual child and family in honouring the diverse aspects which form the background of their lives, including their race, culture, religion, national origin, socioeconomic situation, gender identity and sexual orientation, family composition, and individual ability. Waldorf education is committed to supporting diversity, equity, and inclusion as a pathway to social justice and to rectify the explicit and implicit biases that undermine creation of healthy social life in our society.

Waldorf education was founded in 1919 upon the insights of Rudolf Steiner, whose indications provide the foundations for a truly humanised education that recognizes the individuality of each person and the universal spirit living within every human being. We affirm this educational and social truth. Any statements attributed to Rudolf Steiner which imply or suggest discrimination or judgment toward any race, ethnicity, religion, gender or sexuality, or socio-economic group, are rejected. Such attitudes are contradictory and undermining to the goals of this education.

Working toward these goals requires committed inner work from the adults who care for our children. Teacher preparation and professional deepening call for each educator to engage in self-reflection that will ennoble inner attitudes to support diversity, inclusion and equity. Recognizing and celebrating the differences that make us uniquely individual fosters healing and creation of new social life. We strive to create conscious, collaborative communities of parents, teachers and children, which strengthen the children in our care to meet future challenges with optimism, confidence, resilience and tolerance, and experience their lives as filled with purpose and meaning.

Mobile phones and other electronic devices

According to Dutch law, children are not permitted to use mobile phones at school. If a mobile phone is necessary for safety reasons (e.g. a child who travels to school on his/her own), then the phone must be switched off at school and remain in pupils' bags. In case of violation of this rule, telephones will be confiscated and can be retrieved by the child's parent or guardian at the end of the day.

Parent use of mobile phones on the school grounds is discouraged except for in urgent situations.

Filming or photographing in and around the school is forbidden without permission from the school management.

Smart watches with games, Sim cards and/or internet access are not permitted at school. If a child wears such a watch to school, they will be asked to switch it off and store it in their bags.

Smoking

Smoking is not allowed anywhere on the school premises.

Rules on the playground

To keep our playgrounds clean and our garden plants healthy, we ask that you dispose of your trash in the appropriate receptacles.

Dogs are not permitted on school grounds. Dogs who are with parents at drop-off or pick-up time in front of the school need to be leashed and handled by an adult.

For safety reasons, children may not play with balls before or after school. Ball play is reserved for break and playtimes.

Rules in the hallways

We keep our voices low in the hallway so as not to disturb the other classrooms. We always walk through the hallways, instead of running. Running is reserved for the gym and playground. Ball throwing is also meant for the gym and playground, and balls should be held still while moving through the rest of the school building.

Birthday treats

A child's birthday is a special event. We would like to honour your child on his or her birthday in an appropriate way. Please coordinate with your child's teacher beforehand, as each teacher determines their own way in which birthdays will be celebrated in the class. We encourage parents to prepare a small and healthy treat to share with the class. Candy is not allowed during school time, both in the building and on the playground.

Toys from home

Toys from home are not permitted, as they are a distraction inside the classroom. We provide our children with plenty of well-sought, Waldorf play materials. If your child would be comforted by a small doll or cuddly toy when first starting school, we will make an exception.

10. School holidays

11. Attendance

From the day that your child becomes 5 years of age, he/she is bound by the law on compulsory education and obliged to be in school during every school day. The only reasons for absence are sickness or authorised absence. In cases of unauthorised absence, the school is obliged to inform the city council's compulsory education officer. This protocol sets out how the school deals with this.

Authorised absence

Procedure 'Absence through sickness'

The school should be informed of every absence due to illness on the first school day of the sickness. You should report this on Parro before 08:40. Please include some small detail about the sickness (e.g. fever, ear infection, chicken pox) as we are obliged to report some illnesses to other parents or to the Public Health Authority (GGD).

If the absence is longer than three days, the teacher may contact the parents to ask for an update on the child's recovery.

The teacher will record when a child returns to school.

If a child is absent without any notification of sickness, the absence will be recorded as 'suspected unauthorised absence'.

Doctor's statement

Children who are frequently absent due to sickness may be referred to the school doctor at the Centrum voor Jeugd en Gezin (CJG). Frequent absence is understood to be: 3 absences of 6-10 days per school year; 6 absences of 1-5 days per school year; 2 absences 10+ days per school year.

If your child becomes sick in the holidays and is unable to return to The Netherlands in time to start back at school on the appropriate day, you are required to provide a doctor's letter on letterheaded paper and appropriately stamped.

Appointments in school time

Appointments with the family doctor, dentist, medical specialist and so on should be made out of school time whenever possible. The school realises, however, that sometimes it is unavoidable that these appointments take place during the school day. Parents must report these absences in Parro before 08:40 on the day of the absence. A note should be added as to the type of absence (doctor, dentist, visa).

The absence should be as short as possible. Children should be collected from school as close to the appointment as possible to allow for reasonable travel time and should come back to school after the appointment unless the appointment ends after 15:00.

Therapy in school time

Some children may require regular therapy during the school day. This is permitted by law if the therapist shares the therapy goals with the school and there is some understanding between the school, parents and therapists that the therapy is contributing to the child's well-being and learning. Parents should contact the Learning Support Coordinator to discuss the therapy, if it cannot be arranged outside school hours.

Exceptional Leave During School Time

Parents of children who are bound by the law on compulsory education are obliged to adhere to the set holiday periods. Taking extra time off, going on extended vacations, or going on holiday during school time is not permitted. This is explained in the law on compulsory education. Sometimes an exception may be made. You can submit your request for absence by filling in the 'request for absence' form that is on the school's website. A request for absence should be made at least 6 weeks in advance of the requested absence, to allow for an appeal process through the Municipality's School Attendance Office. Although four-year-olds are not legally obliged to follow these guidelines, we would respectfully ask parents of our youngest children to follow the same procedures as those for the rest of the school.

Profession of parents

Additional leave can be requested if a child, because of the profession of (one of) the parents, cannot go on holiday with them for periods of 2 consecutive weeks within the regular school holidays. This needs to be supported by written evidence. The leave should not be longer than 10 school days per school year and may not be in the first 2 weeks of the school year. If the family has already had a joint holiday, no more leave can be requested in that school year.²

Attention: requests for leave based on professional activities are seldom granted because providing proof is very complex. Please ensure that you submit your request well in time.

Religious reasons

For celebrations or obligations based on religion or religious beliefs (such as Eid al-Fitr, Holi, baptism) special leave may be requested. In this case, a notification by the parents in Parro, at least 2 days before the day of absence, is sufficient. Absence will be granted for 1 day per occasion. Travel time to celebrate a religious festival abroad is not permitted. Absence for cultural festivals (such as Carnival or 4th July) are not permitted.

Important circumstances

Important circumstances (art. 11g of the law on compulsory education) are exceptional circumstances that occur outside the parents and/or child's control that prevent the child

² art. 11f of the law on compulsory education, see also <https://www.rijksoverheid.nl/onderwerpen/leerplicht/vraag-en-antwoord/leerplicht-schoolvakanties> from attending school. Examples are: moving house, a wedding of a close relative, a funeral of a close relative, a 25th or 40th wedding anniversary of a parent or grandparent.

If the absence is for 10 school days or less, the school director makes the decision, according to legal guidelines, if the leave may be granted. If the request is for more than 10 days, the Compulsory Education Officer makes the decision. Parents have the right to lodge an appeal regarding the director's decision, if they wish to do so. The school can provide parents with the contact details of the officer.

Kindergarten attendance

For some children in kindergarten a whole week of school can be tiring, especially in the beginning. For those children, we will permit up to 5 hours of rest at home until their 6th birthday.³ For these 5 hours, you are not required to request permission, but you must inform the school principal. If your child has a need for this, you could extend the exemption with a maximum of 5 hours extra. You have to be granted permission for this by the school principal, who will consult the teacher and the special needs coordinator to come to a decision. Keep in mind that it is in the interest of your child that he/she gets used to a full school week as soon as possible.

Unauthorised absence

If your child is not at school without having a valid reason, the school is obliged to inform the compulsory education officer. The Compulsory Education Officer may start an investigation and even produce a court warrant. This measure may lead to a fine of up to €100 per child per day.

Suspected unauthorised absence

If a child is not in school and the reason for absence is not known, then there is suspected unauthorised absence. The school deals with this as follows:

Enquiry

If a student fails to come to school on time and no notification of sickness has been received before 09.00, the absence coordinator will contact the parents.

- If the child is sick, the procedure 'Absence due to illness' will be followed.
- If the child is late, the 'Lateness procedure' will be followed.
- If there is no valid reason for absence, the notification of suspected unauthorised absence will be entered into the automated registration system of the city council. You will be informed by email of this on the same day and will receive an explanation of the absence protocol.

³ <https://www.rijksoverheid.nl/onderwerpen/leerplicht/vraag-en-antwoord/leerplicht-kind-niet-naar-school>

- If a child does not appear at school for the second day without a valid reason, the parents will be invited to the school for a meeting. This meeting should take place within 5 school days from the first day of absence.
- If, from the meeting, there are problems in the family situation, the teacher and internal consultant will be informed to find a suitable solution together. The compulsory education officer will also be informed.

Procedure

If a child fails to come to school on time and no notification of sickness has been received before 08:40, the teacher will report the absence as 'unauthorised'.

If the child is later determined to be sick, the teacher or Learning Support Coordinator can edit the absence in Parro to 'sick' and the absence is considered to be 'authorised'.

If the child arrives later to school, the teacher or Learning Support Coordinator can edit the absence in Parro to 'late'. However, the absence still counts as unauthorised.

If a child does not appear at school for the second day without a valid reason, the parents will be contacted by the teacher to find out the reason for absence. If the absence lasts for a week, then the parents will be invited into school for a meeting with the Learning Support Coordinator or School Principal. The Compulsory Education Officer will also be informed through the Municipality's automated registration system.

Procedure for Lateness

Arriving late at school is a form of unauthorised absence. Lateness is recorded when a child comes into the school building after 08:40.

The 3-6-9-12 absence protocol below is based on the Methodical Approach School Absence (MAS) of The Hague city council to reduce persistent lateness.

3: When a child has been late to school three times, the teacher will speak to the parents and give them a letter reminding them of the school policy.

6: When a child has been late to school six times the parents will be sent a letter signed by the School Principal. In this letter, the parents are informed that, if their child is late 9 times, this will result in a notification to the Compulsory Education Officer.

9: When a child has been late at school nine times, the school will notify the Compulsory Education Officer. The parents will be informed of this in writing referring to the number of times absent. The compulsory Education Officer will send the parents a warning letter or may decide to invite the parents for a meeting.

12: When a child has been late at school twelve times, the school will again notify the Compulsory Education Officer. The parents will have already received a warning letter and then are invited to a meeting by the Compulsory Education Officer, who may issue the parents with a fine or a warrant to appear in court.

NB: The absence lists are processed at the end of the month. Therefore, you may not receive a letter from the teacher immediately after your child has been late 3 times, or more. The letters are sent as soon as possible and will include the number of times of being late.

12. Food and beverages

Meals in the kindergarten

On Mondays, children in the kindergarten bring in their own healthy snack and lunch from home. From Tuesdays until Fridays, the school provides all of the meals (snack and lunch) for kindergarten children.

Snack and lunch in the grades school

Children in the primary school bring in their own healthy snack and lunch from home, as well as a water bottle. Children will eat their meals in their classroom under the supervision of the teacher. As chores are a chance to learn responsibility, children will tidy up afterwards.

Story material within the Waldorf curriculum

During the course of their primary school careers, children are exposed to a wide range of literature. In Class One, the children hear many fairy tales. These include Grimm's fairy tales, but also traditional tales from around the world. In Class Two, children hear animal fables, as well as stories that highlight ethical human behaviour. Old Testament stories are told in Class Three, whereas Norse myths are told in Class Four. In Class Five and Six, children journey through the worlds of Ancient Egypt, Ancient India, Ancient Persia, Ancient Greece and Ancient Rome. Thus, by the time children reach Class Six, they would have heard many creation stories and would have been exposed to the belief systems of many different cultures. This helps children to see how human thinking has evolved over time. It also teaches children that we are all different and have different beliefs. It helps children to form their own views and to develop a deeper understanding and respect for people from all around the world.

Social and emotional well-being

The social and emotional well-being of the children at our school are important to us.

Assessment

Children in Classes 1 to 6 are given assessments twice a year to help teachers to track progress. These school assessments include PM Reading Benchmarks (a standardised English reading test) and in-school maths assessments based on the Waldorf curriculum. The results are included in the end-of-year school report.

Children in Classes 4, 5 and 6 are assessed twice a year using MapGrowth. This is an online tool used by international and American schools. Reading, Mathematics and Language are assessed and children's progress is tracked over time. The results are shared with parents and included in the end-of-year school report.

The school has a subscription to the online GL assessment Cognitive Abilities Test 4 (CAT-4). Children in Class 6 may take this test to help with a determination of which Dutch secondary school stream they should apply for. It may also be used by the Learning Support Coordinator to help identify a child's learning profile when the school has concerns about their progress.

Seasonal festivals

Seasonal festivals have a special place in the Waldorf curriculum. During seasonal festivals, we celebrate the cycle of the year and our connection to nature. Children will cherish these celebrations and recall them throughout their lives as precious memories.

At The International Waldorf School The Hague, we celebrate four festivals as a school each year. These include:

The Michaelmas and Harvest celebration,
The Advent & Christmas celebration,
The Whitsun & Diversity celebration,
The Summer & St John's celebration.

Although these festivals have a Christian origin and background, we do not focus on the religious aspects of these festivals at our school. At Michaelmas, we tell stories about knights taming dragons, which teach children that they can overcome their own struggles and battles. At Christmas time, we focus on coming together as a community, whilst singing both secular Christmas songs as well as more traditional Christmas carols. At Whitsun, the children dance around a Maypole – a celebration which is believed to have started in Roman Britain around 2000 years ago. On this day, we also celebrate the diverse cultures and backgrounds within our school. At the Summer & St John's celebration, the primary school children jump over a small fire (a highlight of the year for many), which signifies leaving behind the past and embracing the future. The children also make crowns from grass and fresh flowers, to celebrate the wonderful Summer season. These festivals bring a predictable rhythm to the year, which is important for children. The festivals also help us to build our school community and to foster positive relationships with one another.

In addition, during the course of the year, class teachers celebrate many other festivals within their individual classes. Teachers make an effort to incorporate festivals and celebrations from the children in their own classes in order to acknowledge and celebrate the traditions to which the individual children in their classes belong. These may include the Chinese New Year, Diwali or Eid. Children are invited and encouraged to share their own beliefs and cultures with the rest of the class, and much emphasis is placed on our wonderful diversity and on treating each other with courtesy and respect.

More information on the seasonal festivals can be found on our school website.

Adventures outside of the school

Outdoor experiences

The children will play outside on a daily basis. We may also take nature walks to a neighbourhood park or the beach depending on the weather, season and purpose.

We always recommend that you dress your child appropriate to the season. The best solution is to dress your child in different layers so she or he can undress or add on new layers, depending on the situation.

Field trips

For adventures further afield, we will always inform you ahead of time and often ask for parent assistance. The field trips will be in relation to the units of study and in collaboration with parents. We welcome your input.

14. Management

Management structure

The IWSTRH is part of the primary school 'De Vrije School Den Haag', which is the Dutch Waldorf school. This school originated from the idea that students, teachers, staff and parents together form a community and need no formal director.

Children and their development are the central focus of the school. The teachers are responsible for the didactic and pedagogical policy. Staff, parents and management work together to ensure that the conditions are met for the teachers to be able to carry out their work with the children. The principal supports this process, and holds the final responsibility for the school.

The school is merged with Waldorf schools for secondary education in The Hague, Leiden and Rotterdam. Together they are called 'Stichting Vrijescholen Zuidwest Nederland (ZWN)'. This foundation acts as the responsible authority and employer for the IWSTRH, De Vrije School Den Haag, the Marecollege in Leiden, Alphen aan den Rein and Zoetermeer and the Rudolf Steiner College in Rotterdam. The management of the foundation is formed by the central director, who has the final responsibility for this legal entity. This position is held by: Mr. Sebastian Kooiman.

Supervisory Board

The school has a supervisory board, which monitors the functioning of the central director. Important decisions by the central director (i.e. determining the budget and drawing up the annual accounts, mergers with other schools and policy plans) have to be approved by the supervisory board.

Supervisory Board

- W. (Wouter) van Ewijk (voorzitter)
- M. (Marten) de Bruine
- K.C. (Karin) Jansen
- M. (Madeleine) Vreeburg
- T. (Ted) van Schie

Participation council

By law, every school in the Netherlands has a participation council⁴, where elected representatives of teachers and parents are consulted over matters concerning the quality of the school. For the 2025-2026 school year, the members of the participation council are Sarah Mann, Lindie van Jaarsveld, Freddy Nyiti and Bernadette Tedeschi.

Acting on the code for proper management

In 2015, the VO Raad (Secondary council) set out a new code for proper management. The management and supervisory board of ZWN endorse this code. As an extension of this code, a number of documents have been published which reflect good educational management. The selection is partly required by the code. It involves the following documents:

The statutes of the foundation (the statutory aims of the foundation are included in this, as well as the formal division of tasks between supervisors and management);

⁴ <https://english.rijksdienstcn.com/education-culture-science/parents-students/participation>

The Regulation Management Supervisory Board and School Leader dated 13 January 2009⁵ (this is an elaboration on the statutes in which mutual tasks and authorities between supervisors, management and school leaders have been established);

The Integrity code ZWN (this describes how problems in connection with integrity in relation to conflict of interest are dealt with within ZWN);

The Complaints regulation ZWN (this regulation contains the formal steps a parent and/or student can take in case of a complaint against the school);

Whistle-blower regulation ZWN (this regulates which steps can be taken by staff in case of well-founded suspicions of abuse. This regulation is meant to protect the plaintiff);

Annual accounts ZWN 2014 (Certified).

15. Complaints procedure

Where do you go if you have a complaint?

Questions, problems, concerns and complaints can develop in any school about many different matters. They can occur in every possible combination between students, staff and parents. It is important that the person who has the problem reports this as soon as possible. To this end, a complaints procedure has been drawn up. There is also a communications pathway diagram to aid in determining who to contact according to the nature of the concern. See heading Parent and School Communication Pathways.

Internal and external complaints procedure

Internal complaints

Internal complaints regard questions, problems and (usually verbal) complaints that can be dealt with within the school.

The internal procedure

Three points of contact:

First point of contact

The class teacher. In case of pedagogical problems, behavioural problems, practical questions, etc.

⁵ In the code proper educational management, there are two documents: the management statute and regulations regarding the functioning of the management and supervision. For ZWN, both documents are combined in the document mentioned here.

Second point of contact

The Learning Support Coordinator (LSC). If it has not been possible to solve the matter with the class teacher or if there is a problem of trust.

Third point of contact

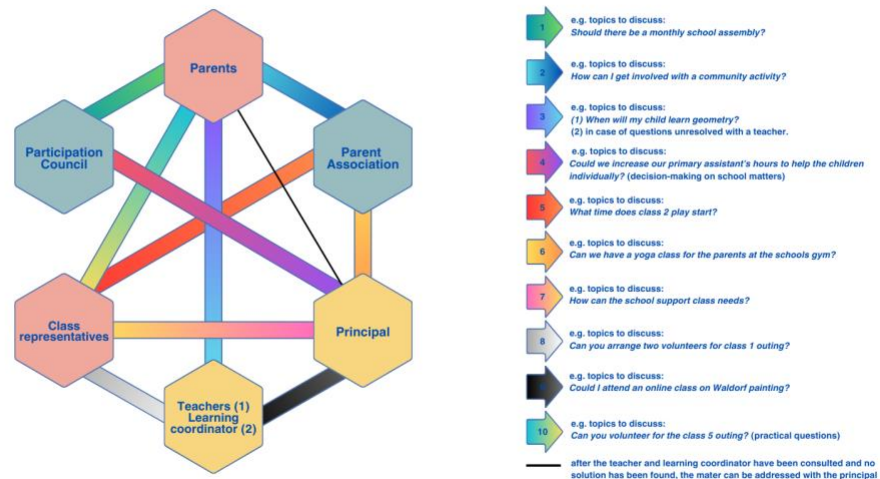

The school principal. If the matter cannot be solved satisfactorily with the class teacher and LSC, you may contact the school principal via email only. Please do not use Parro for this purpose.

If the matter is still unresolved, it will go to the central director of the foundation, Sebastiaan Cooman: s.Cooman@vszh.nl. The director will determine whether everything has been done in dealing with the problem/complaint to come to a proper solution.

Parent and School Communication Pathways

We use the pathway chart below to help parents determine who to contact according to the type of question, concern or complaint:

Communication Pathways
International Waldorf School The Hague

External complaints

Confidential person

In the situations above, we have assumed that the communication is clear, and the intentions are proper, but that there is a difference of opinion. This is not always the case or is not perceived as such. When it becomes difficult to express an issue, which concerns undesirable behaviour, where boundaries have been crossed, especially if it concerns behaviour that is perceived as threatening, the confidential person may be contacted. Undesirable behaviour includes intimidation/threats, sexual intimidation, undesired intimacies, bullying, discrimination and aggression.

The confidential person can offer primary help and advice. In the second instance, she can determine whether there might be a solution in an informal situation. A meeting with the confidential person is, initially, always confidential. This is the reason why she is located outside the school. After an analysis of the problem, she can refer and assist in internal and external procedures. The confidential person to consult is Aafke Scharloo.

Hague Circle

Hague Circle

International Council for Steiner Waldorf Education

W www.waldorf-international.org

The Hague Circle is the International Council for Steiner Waldorf Education. Twice a year, active Waldorf teachers from all over the world meet for a multi-day conference in one of the participating countries or at the Goetheanum in Dornach.

The conferences serve the mutual understanding and exchange on key educational issues that have national or global significance. The members of the International Council for Steiner Waldorf Education bring their experiences to the meetings, and discuss - on the basis of differentiated perceptions - the key criteria of Waldorf education and their application in different geographic, cultural, economic and political regions of the world.

International Council for Steiner Waldorf Education participants are appointed by institutions responsible for Waldorf education in their respective home countries, and work closely together with those institutions. They are ambassadors of a pedagogical impulse, whose universal human aspects foster both the unfolding of the individuality in the human being as well as a diverse global culture.
